of the Phoenix mine, is in the city for still greatly increased. This strike may in the tunnel at the top of the shaft on property than the uncovering of an adwhich sinking has been going on for some time. For the reader to, understand the situation thoroughly it is necessary to recount some things that have been printed before. A tunnel was run into the hill and a shaft was started to meet the tunnel at a depth of 145 feet. A windlass was then placed in the tunnel at that point, and sinking continued. This shaft is in the country rock near the foot wall, and the object in sinking it was to secure a water supply. Mr. Smith announces that at a depth of 35 feet below the tunnel they have struck water in a quantity so great as to make windlass work impracticable, and he is here now for the purpose of setting a better hoisting apparatus. What the striking of water in the Phoenix mine means is well understood by all those familiar with the property. The Phoenix mine management has nore gold ore than water and a large quantity of low grade ore. To make its working profitable there must be an ample supply for continuous operation of the mill, and every effort bas been put forth to get this supply, even to the neglect of further opening up of the ore bodies. That Mr. Smith is pleased with the present outlook is putting it mildly, for there is little doubt that with fur-

Timothy A. Driscoll Enthusiastic About His Property.

Among visitors from Arizona during he past week was Timothy J. Driscoll. superintendent of the Loma Verde Copper mine, says the Los Angeles Mining Review. He brought with him samples of ore from the 100 foot level, where a 100-foot crosscut is being made, showing sulphides coming in, and also good showing of copper sulphites. In conversation Mr. Driscoll said: "I will stake my reputation on this mine. I have seen nearly every copper mine of note in the world and I know that the Loma Verde has the greatest showing for the amount of development work Why, at 100 feet depth, we have ore the full width of the shaft going about 30 per cent copper and we shall not know how wide the deposit is till we finish the crosscut. I have let a contract for 100 feet more in depth, and the ore taken out from these workings will undoubtedly pay all expenses, and it may pay handsome profits, too. The ormation is right for a big copper mine and the conditions are the most favorable I have ever seen. We have fine reads, wed and water in abundance and ore which is rich in copper, besides arrying some gold and silver. What ore could we ask for."
